Johnson Bares Threat By Reds in 6-Day War

NEW YORK, May 12 (UPI).—Former President Lyndon B. Johnson said yesterday that near the end of the 1967 six-day Middle East war he received a message from Soviet Premier Alexel Kosygin threatening military intervention if Israel did not stop operations.

Mr. Johnson said he ordered the U.S. Sixth Fleet moved closer to the Syrian coast, where fighting continued in case the Russians intervened but the war ended before Russia could get involved. . He made the comments in an interview with Mike Wallace on a CBS telecast,

- The hot-line call from Mr. Kosygin came about 8 a.m. June 10. 1967. Mr. Johnson stated that the message said the Soviet Union would take "necessary actions, including military," within a few hours unless Israel unconditionally halted military operations.

Mr. Johnson said Ambassador-at-Large Liewellyn E. Thompson ir. was asked to make sure the translation included the word "military." When assured it did, the President ordered the Sixth Fleet to stations 50 miles off the Syrian coast. "Of course, every man in that room knew, and all the leaders of the Soviet Union knew that every movement of that fleet was being monitored by the Soviet Union." Mr. Johnson said. "And any changes in its direction would immediately be intercepted by the Soviet Union and Advance copies of the papal document were sent to Catholic bishops' conferences in various countries during the last few days. One such copy was made available yesterday by a source that did not want to be identified.

The document was described by an expert as "a major social encyclical in all but its outward form," An encyclical, or papal circular letter, is directed to the hierarchy at large whereas an apostolic letter is addressed to an individual or a group of individuals.

Anniversary of Encyclical

The apostolic letter to Cardinal Roy marked the 80th anniversary of the encyclical "Rerum Novarum" (Of New Things) by Pope Leo XIII. "Rerum Novarum" dealt with what then was called the "workers' question." It rejected socialism, upheld the right of private property and a just wage, and advocated intermediate organizations between the state and the individual.

Regarded as the landmark papal pronouncement on social questions, "Rerum Novarum" in effect paved the way for the Catholic trade-union movement. Pope Pius XI commemorated the 40th anniversary of "Rerum Novarum" in 1931 in his social encyclical "Quadragesimo Anno" (In the 40th Year).

The Vatican newspaper L'Osservatore Romano announced last night that a "pontifical document" commemorating "Rerum Novarum"-obviously, the letter UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., May 12 (Reuters).—Pakistani President Yahya Khan has told the UN that East Pakistan has adequate supplies of medicines, food and other necessities.

In a message to Secretary-General U Thant released today, Mr. Yahya said that Indian and Western press reports of heavy casualties, widespread destruction and misery in East Pakistan had been highly exaggerated, and that there was no need for concern. The message, handed to Mr.

Thant on May 3 by Pakistan's UN ambassador, was in reply to a letter from the secretary-general dated April 22, offering emergency aid from the UN and its specialized agencies.

Mr. Thant said he was greatly concerned about the East Pakistan situation in the light of information received from various sources, including UN personnel recently returned from the area. He said he felt the UN had a useful role to play in relieving the widespread misery, hardships and suffering on purely humaniterian grounds.

Six Agree on Compensation For West German Farmers

-West Germany's two million farmers will receive Common Market compensation for financial losses they guffer through the floating of the deutsche mark under a compromise agreement thrashed out here early today.

After the second all-night meeting of ministers of the European Economic Community in four days, the market's integrated farm system—its one real achievement so far toward the goal of monetary and economic unionwas saved by concessions from the two main contenders, West Germany and France. The problem arose because Monday's floating of the mark caused difficulties for the system of single farm prices in all six market countries pegged to a unit of account equal to one dollar and known as the "green dollar." It meant, in effect, that the income of West German farmers, already suffering in comparison with other sections of the population, would go down in proportion to the amount the mark floated away from the dollar, if a complicated system of border taxes was not introduced either West Germany alone or by the EEC as a whole.

Alternatively, the Germans would have had to pay the whole bill out of their national budget. Under today's agreement, West German farmers—and also those from the Netherlands, which has floated the guilder-will get a rebate on products which they export, while a special levy will be charged on their agricultural imports. The agreement came only after the Germans dropped their insistence that the system should come into force irrespective of how much the mark floated, and agreed that it should apply only when the mark had drifted at least 2.5 percent away from its official parity with the dollar.

The mark has, in fact, been above this level since Monday's floating. If it does go below, which seems a remote chance West Germany will have to compensate its farmers out of its national budget.

The French made major concessions in dropping their views that the Germans should cover the first 25 percent anyway, and that the border taxes should be imposed only on products where there was a serious threat of market disruption and should be limited in time. There was a sense of relief in EEC circles today that an embarrassing rupture had been narrowly avoided at a time when a new round of British entry negotiations is taking place. Upon his return to Bonn, Hans Dieter Griesau, state secretary in the West German Agriculture Ministry, said the German delegation in Brussels felt it was

> He pointed out that West Germany was particularly pleased that the ministers did not set a time limit on border levies on agricultural products. This, he said, would only have opened the door to speculators, as it would bare indicated the end of the period for which West Germany was prepared to float the mark. The final deal was worked out at a private session of the ministers closeted in the office of French Agriculture Minister Michel Cointat, who presided at the session Mr. Cointat told a press conference afterward that the regulation was fair to all member states. He stressed that it was a short-term emergency measure and that it would apply "only when absolutely necessary to safeguard the common agriculture policy."

The community replied today that Britain could have the six steps, but the final adjustment should be made by the end of 1977. The negotiators were meeting tonight to iron out the difference. The community's main point was that since British industrial tariffs will make their final adjustment to the community level at the end of 1977, it would help to make the final agriculture adjustment at the same time. The British maintain that to make such a significant price adjustment without having a serious effect on the economy, they would need the extra crop year. Technical as details like these may seem, they involve huge sums of money, and the British have argued all along that a miscalculation on any of these points would made it extremely difficult to achieve ratification in Agreement on the adjustment

In Seattle, the Boeing Co. said if its SST program were revived. it would need a new contract to handle the "large costs" of cranking it up again.

The debate on the measure was on much the same lines as before. Supporters of the SST said its development was essential to maintain world leadership in aviation for the United States and to provide a positive item in the balance-of-payments situation. Opponents said the project should be privately financed. since government founds were needed for other priorities. They said the SST would benefit only the waelthy, since they would be the only ones who could afford to fly in it. Rep. Edward Boland, D., Mass. sponsor of the measure, said: "This is a terribly important issue for the nation. We've got

"You bet there is a danger of losing our lead in aviation," he said. "We're going to lose it to the British and the French if we stop the SST."

Senate Democratic leader Mike Manafield of Montana said the SST would stir "very extended debate" when it got to the Senate. He said the outcome there could be closer than the 51-46 margin by which the full appropriation was rejected by the Senate in Opponents in the Senate, who previously were instrumental in lefeating further funding for the SST, are expected to mount a filibuster against it.

Cost to Government

NEW YORK, May 12 (WP) -If the SST program is revived. the government will have to pay the entire bill, Fred J. Borch, chairman of General Electric. which was designing the engines for the SST, said yesterday. He said the company has dismantled the project and that "going back would cost so much." He said the original contract. under which the government naid 90 percent of the development cost and the builders paid the other 10 percent, was negotiated in 1965 and a new contract would have to be drawn up.

Explaining that the British-French Concorde is financed entirely by the governments of those two countries, Mr. Borch said: "The only way the SST could compete with the Concorde would be on the same basis. It's got to be head-to-head government competition. This is not a normal competition."

to drop the levels an average of 3 percent to community levels by It was not known what instructions Mr. Schumann brought back from Mr. Pompidou on sugar, but the British have been very firm that they expect concessions. It became obvious today that in some quarters the French were suspected of avoiding giving assurances to Britain on sugar which could have been the cause of Mr. Rippon's angry outburst yesterday, when he told the Council of Ministers to start acting like statesmen.

An agreement on sugar had been taken as a good bet during this meeting, as the other main issues-British financial contributions. New Zealand exports and sterling-were given little chance of being settled. On Monday, at a meeting of the Six. France had dropped is insistence that British Commonwealth sugar imports be cut by over half to 500,000 tons by 1974

But yesterday Mr. Rippon indicated that the French concession was not the concession it seemed, and today the French came under fire in several quarters for their move.

The London Times said that the French had taken advantage of the had climate created within the community during last weekend's currency crisis to push through their sugar plan.

And in a long letter to the Times, Lord Campbell, chairman of the Commonwealth Sugar Exporters Association, denied there had been any French concession and said the French had simply withdrawn an "outrageous demand." Lord Campbell repeated what Mr. Rippon said yesterday, that Britain must get sugar guarantees for the producers after 1974, which the community has not yet offered. The issue is particularly difficult because the British are asking greater protection for their former colonies than the Sixespecially France-gave to their own colonies under the community's agreements with former African colonies. The British want their former sugar colonies to be granted quotas to sell to the community, which the French have opposed. The French prefer cash guarantees.

New Zealand is an even more difficult problem because of Britain's emotional attachments to the island. Britain wants to obtain guarantees so that the New Zealanders, who sell 90 percent of their mutton, cheese and butter exports to Britain, can continue to do so until they have time to diversify their economy. The Six don't think that the mutton imports represent such a problem, because Europeans eat so little of this, but they have opposed long-term diary imports. One of the main reasons French and Dutch farmers have backed British entry is so they may take the New Zealanders' place. The New Zealand problem, like British financial payments to the community, will be left for Mr.

Heath and Mr. Pompidou at their summit. The two sides planned to meet till dawn tomorrow, however, in hones that some progress would be made, at least on the financing question.

"It is his feeling that such step would pull away the underpinning of the post-World War II foreign policy.

Mr. Ziegler said a year-long study just completed confirms the validity of the President's position regarding troop requirements, and he noted that the President has confirmed to the allies that there will be no reduction of force levels in Europe.

ing in the high court. An estimated 135 petitions, typical of the 648 death sentence cases across the nation, are ripe for a new look by the Supreme Court, which is scheduled to meet every Monday until its term ends sometime next month.

The petitions, some of which rely on little besides the Eighth Amendment claim, had been held for months and even years while the court considered numerous challenges to the administration of capital punishment. The brief called the court's attention to other claims available to the 23 condemned prisoners whose petitions the fund is handling, but stressed that the Eighth Amendment issue "must eventually be decided."

"There can be no better or more pressing time than now. when a four-year moratorium on executions has been ended," the brief said, referring to the high court's 6-to-3 decisions last week. No prisoner has been executed in the United States since June,

Other issues include whether lower courts have too quickly dismissed potential jurors who expressed reservations about capital punishment, whether jurors are screened in a way that produces conviction-prone juries, and whether condemned prisoners have an absolute right to counsel at every stage until their sentences are carried out.

Experts commissioned by the fund have completed a study which proves that the typical jury-screening procedure "does produce a jury that is unfairly biased on the guilt question," the brief said. It added that the fund was prepared to test the results in a court if given a

Anti-War Groups in U.S. Split Over Ideologies and Tactics

Like other political interest groups, it is divided on goals, tactics and ideology. The basic split, according to persons on both sides, is between the more politically rigid National Peace Action Coalition, with its adherence to Trotskyite and other socialist disciplines. and the less structured. more free-wheeling radical activists of the May Day movement, like Remnie Davis.

There are countless other tangential factions: The traditional pacifists who object to tactical violence the anti-war veterans who are not partisan sympathizers with the Viet Cong or

Russia Protests Collision of Tug, U.S. Destroyer

MOSCOW, May 12 (AP).—The Soviet Foreign Ministry lodged a protest with the American Embassy in Moscow yesterday in connection with the collision of the U.S. destroyer Hanson and the Russian tug Diomid Thursday in the Korean Strait near the Japanese coast

The Soviet news agency Tass said the Russian tug was damaged "considerably" in the collision. The U.S. Navy reported May 6 that the vessels suffered only minor damage and that no crewmen were injured.

The protest note "stressed that such actions by a U.S. paval ship. endangering the safety of navigation on the high seas, are at variance with the generally recognized standards of international law." Tass reported. The agency added that "the note demands that the U.S. gov-prevent any such incidents in the future and says that the Soviet side reserves the right to demand compensation for the damage caused to the Soviet vessel." French Road Deaths Drop PARIS, May 12 (UPI).—Road deaths in France dropped by 256 to 14,828 between April 1970 and March, 1971. Government officials said the new 68-mph. speed limit on main roads begun last May was responsible for the improved figure.

WASHINGTON, May 12 (WP). North Vietnam, as are many of the more politically oriented activists, the young and often immature "street people," who have not developed a political ideology into which to weave their objection to the war Several organizers feel this unity weakened the lack of thrust of protest in the last three weeks. One spokesman, Bradford Lyttle, 43, a coordinator of the People's Coalition for Peace and Justice (of which May Day is a major component), says the fragmentation explains why the legal mass march and raily staged here by NPAC on April 34 was separated by more than a week from May Day's efforts at large-scale traffic disruption last

"I wanted to have mass 'C. D.s' the NPAC's big rally." Mr. Lyttle said. "so that extra thousands of persons would be on hand possibly to participate.

"But I lost to the mysticism of May Day." he said, explaining that May Day organizers flatly refused to reschedule the May 3-4 disruption dates because of their symbolic closeness to the Kent State anniversary (May 5) and the international socialist holiday of May 1.

Mr. Davis, a key May Day organizer, said the dates were kept so that the mass actions here could be coordinated with anticipated simultaneous demonstrations in Saigon.

NPAC's mass rally drew some 200.000 persons from a broad nolitical cross-section. A large portion said they were conventional political liberals. Many may have been unaware that they were marching in solidarity with numerous partisans of North Vietnam and the Viet Cong until they saw the VC flags and poster pictures of Mao Tse-tung. In contrast, the crowds drawn to the May Day traffic disruptions a week later were more uniformly committed to radical action, though not necessarily to rigid political Communism.

WASHINGTON, May 12 (WP). -Political backers of President Nixon and of Rep. Paul N. (Pete) McCloskey, R., Calif., yesterday announced the opening of rival offices on Pennsylvania Avenue to lay the groundwork for the 1972 Republican presidential campaign.

The Nixon office is a large suite in a modern building a block from the White House. It will be staffed initially by four former presidential aides and is decorated with White House photographs of Mr. Nixon.

The McCloskey office is an un-imposing storefront office, formerly occupied by a real estate firm, three blocks from the Capitol. It is staffed initially by Mrs. Ruth Kevan, a volunteer worker who formerly lived near the congressman in McLean, Va. Rep. McCloskey has said he will run against Mr. Nixon in the primaries next year as an antiwar candidate, if no one clse steps forward to do so.

The first trickles were received with such enthusiasm that the small reserve reservoir quickly lowered and engineers said water might not reach the higher hill districts until tomorrow morning due to insuffi-

Since Saturday, more than half of Rome has been without water while the new aqueduct was hooked up. Hundreds of public fountains were kept running to provide enough water for drinking and washing

The return of 23,850 city employees brought a flood of Romans to government offices seeking documents to let them marry. bury their dead, vote and deal with taxes. The government also announced service will return to normal at Rome's international Leonardo da Vinci Airport, where a ground crew strike had snarled service.

Rome's garbage collectors were back on the job. The backlog of garbage will take days to clean up, officials said.

Hotel employees also returned to work, after two days of strikes. However, Milan was hit by a walkout of city employees today, demanding pay scales similar to those of state workers. The 24hour strike closed city licensing offices, museums, cemeteries, cityrun slaughterhouses and municipal vegetable markets. Traffic was chaotic and children went without the noon meal at school. Milan's 40,000 employees said if their demands were not met they would walk out four more days within the next few weeks.

Plot Reported Unsuccessful In Argentina

Coup Attempt Foiled, Gen. Labanca Sought.

BUENOS AIRES, May 12 (UPI). -The Argentine Army has issued an order for the arrest of a retired general for leading an unsuccessful attempt to overthrow the military government of President Alejandro Lanusse military sources said last night. The retired general, who was said to be the leader of the alleged plot, was identified as

Gen. Eduardo Rafael Labanca. Four other army officers, three of them retired, already have been arrested, the sources said. They said the plot to topple Gen. Lanusse involved only a few army officers and had been completely broken up. They said Gen Labanca was the highest

Gen. Lamisse, commander-inchief of the army as well as president, took over the government on March 26 by ousting Roberto Levingston from presidency in a bloodless ranking member of the plot.

The military has governed Argentina since June, 1966, when the country's last civilian president, Arturo U. Illia, was ousted. One of the key reasons Gen. Lanuage took over the government, he said, was to restore constitutional democracy to Argentins, and call elections to lead the country back to civilian rule. Though Gen. Lebanca is known to be strongly anti-Communist. sources in military and political circles described the alleged plot as "leftist-nationalist" in nature.

Peace Replaces Victory at Navy

ANNAPOLIS Md., May 12 (AP).—The statue of the mighty American Indian warrior Tecumseh, traditional god of athletic victories and passing grades at the U.S. Naval Academy, has been exposed as a fraud.

The bronze figurehead prominently displayed since 1930 on a granite pedestal in front of the academy's 4,200man dormitory, is in reality that of Tamanend, the Deaceloving chief of the Delawares who signed the treaty with colonial leader William Penn. Academy officials disclosed that the true identity of the statue had been known since 1914, but that no public disclosure had been made because generations of midshipmen had clung to the Tecumseh tradition which proclaims that a penny pttched at the statue or a left-handed salute guarantees the supplicant passing grades or a winning football game against

Metropolitan in N.Y. Gets Record-Priced Velazquez

NEW YORK, May 12 (Reuters).-A Velazquez masterpiece which was auctioned for a record $5.544 million in London last year has been acquired by New York's Metropolitan Museum of Art.

The painting of the Spanish master's mulatto assistant. Juan de Pareja, "is one of the halfdosen most important single acquisitions in the museum's history," the museum annumced.

The portrait was bought by the Wildenstein Gallery of New York for the record sum at Christie's on Nov. 27 and resulted in a storm of protests from British art lovers who sought to keep it

A spokesman for the gallery said the Metropolitan took title to the painting at the end of February.

Thomas Hoving, director of the museum told a press conference that the museum had acquired the masterpiece from Wildenstein at no additional cost to the auction price.

He denied that there was any prior arrangement between Metropolitan and the Wildenstein Gallery for acquiring the picture, but admitted under questioning by reporters that the Metropolitan had "had an option"

The amount paid for the Velarguez was more than double the previous highest sum hid for a painting-$23 million paid in 1961 for Rembrandt's "Aristotle Contemplating the Bust Homer." That work is also in the Metropolitan Museum

Douglas Dillon, president of the Metropolitan, said that the offer

Proxmire Calls For $7 Billion Cut in Defense

WASHINGTON, May 13 (WF). -Pentagon critics in Congress will try to cut the defense spending budget by "about $7 billion" this year, Sen. William Proxmire, D., Wis., said yesterday. Imposing a ceiling on Pentagon spending in fiscal 1972 represents a change of tactics. Critics in past years concentratprograms out of the Pentagon budget. While declaring that there may again be some amendments of that kind this year, Sen. Proxmire told a news conference that the prime alm of the critics is a congressionally dictated budgetary ceiling.

What Sen. Proximire considers to be the Pentagon's fiscal 1973 spending figure, his aides said, is the $74.975 billion shown on Page 96 of President Nixon's budget book. That total covers almost everything except military assistance to foreign nations.

The forum for Sen. Proximire's remarks was a press conference calling for cancellation of the Navy's F-14 fighter on grounds that the plane and its expensive Phoenix missile system could neither adequately protect the U.S. fleet nor combat Soviet aircraft in dogfights.

Bernsteins Host Berrigan Benefit In Park Ave. Home, Raise $35,000

By Charlotte Curtis

NEW YORK, May 12 (NYT) .- Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Bernstein, whose 1970 fund-raising party for the Black Panthers legal defense fund triggered widespread criticism, gave another civil liberties gathering Monday night—this time on behalf of the Rev. Philip F. Berrigan and his seven co-defendants. Mr. Bernstein was formerly director of the New York Philharmonic.

Father Berrigan, Roman Catholic priest, and his colleagues are charged with conspiring to kidnap Henry A. Kissinger, President Nixon's national security adviser, and plotting to destroy the government's heating systems in Washington. D.C.

He was not at the Bernsteins'. But Paul O'Dwyer, one of his four attorneys, Eqbal Ahmad and Sister Elizabeth McAlister, his co-defendants, were. Mr. Ahmad, a Pakistani, is a fellow of the Adlai Stevenson Institute for International Affairs in Chicago, Sister McAlister, a member of the Order of the Religious of the Sacred Heart of Mary, is a nun.

$35,000 Raised The 125 guests, many of whom represented the entertainment business, also went to give money. There were three $5,000 contributions. Before the evening ended the defense fund was $35,000 richer.

Mr. O'Dwyer discussed the legal and civil liberties implications of the case. Mr. Ahmad, noting that the United States provided his education in much the same way England had educated older members of his family, said he owed it to this country to help preserve its civil liberties. Sister McAlister spoke of the new activism in the peace movement. "I add a lot of color," she said, apparently ironically, "and

I'm always brief.? She drew the most applause. The gathering, a private after-dinner meeting with coffee and cake in the Bernsteins' spacious Park Avenue drawing room, was closed to the press.

Schumann Declares His Visit To Moscow Helped Detente

MOSCOW, May 12 (AP).--French Foreign Minister Maurice Schumann's visit, the newspaper Schumann was quoted here today as saying his recent visit to Moscow advanced the cause of peace in Europe. The Soviet news agency Tass distributed excerpts of an interview with Mr. Schumann which will appear in this Saturday's Moscow News. The paper is printed in French, English and other languages and is distributed primarily to foreigners in Moscow. It quotes Mr. Schumann as telling one of its reporters, "I can say that this meeting... has justified our hopes and corresponds to the understanding of steadily developing Franco-Soviet relations."

Mr. Schumann left Moscow Friday after a three-day visit. "During these talks and particular, during the talk with the chairman of the U.S.S.R. Council of Ministers, Mr. [Alexei] Kosygin," Mr. Schumann told the Moscow News, "I noted with satisfaction the development of Franco-Soviet cooperation, which has fallen into a working pace." Mr. Schumann said joint Soviet-French economic organizations, such as "La Grande Commission" "are to determine the concrete points of application of

Politics Vs. Justice

However much he may know about marketing municipal bonds or managing a political campaign, Attorney General John Mitchell has again demonstrated that he understands very little about the interdependence of law and liberty in a free society.

On Monday he compared last week's demonstrators in Washington to Hitler's Brownshirts and extolled the police for violating the law. If this reckless speech had been delivered by a national party chairman to a partisan audience, it would have been regrettable but easily dismissed. Coming as it does from the Attorney General, the principal legal officer of the U.S. government, speaking to an official meeting of California policemen, this speech evokes renewed dismay at Mitchell's unfitness to head what is supposed to be a Department of Justice.

The radical Mayday demonstrations were from the outset ill-conceived as a tactic directed against the Vietnam war. They inevitably presented a difficult challenge to the Washington police force. The police performance was mixed. The police certainly deserve credit for avoiding the bloody violence and loss of professional discipline that have sometimes occurred in other confrontations in other cities.

But there was a resort to wholesale illegality. Normal arrest procedures were suspended. Thousands of individuals were hustled off to jail and to a detention center. They were not assigned or charged with a specific crime. They were held for long periods without food and incommunicado. Most of them were released when the courts finally intervened. These police methods were not those of a lawful society acting under the Constitution in protection of democratic liberties. In this respect the Washington police action is not to be condoned, much less extolled, as a pattern for police in other cities. It was indeed essential to keep the streets open; but that could have been done without resort to indiscriminate mass arrests. The failure to proceed lawfully and selectively was a serious lapse of judgment by the Washington police. To what extent this error of judgment was influenced by pressure from Mitchell is not .

The police may have feared that they were going to be in combat with tough urban guerrillas. In fact, the Mayday demonstrators were mostly feckless and leaderless. They did not generally taunt the police; they tried to engage in friendly dialogue with them. They did not resist arrest. Incidents of violence against property were comparatively few and well within the power of the police to contain.

For Mitchell to compare these demonstrators to Nazi Brownshirts is absurd. For him to paint this lurid picture of Washington, caught up in a terrifying struggle against "mob rule," is deliberately to mislead the public. His motives appear to be blatantly political. Mitchell seems to think there are votes to be won by being "tough" with longhaired radicals. Instead of trying to maintain the delicate and difficult balance between the necessary maintenance of public order and the protection of individual rights, he has made a vulgar and inflammatory appeal to prejudice and passion.

A civilized society judges itself on the way in which it treats troublesome minorities. It is no defense of police violations of due process for the Attorney General to argue that some of the radical dissenters would deny rights to others and would like to destroy this nation's system of liberty. Of course they would. But the law-abiding majority expects its public officials to dispense justice and enforce the laws according to the standards laid down by the Constitution and the courts, not by the depraved standards of the enemies of freedom.

It is a simple adaptation of the rules of horseracing to politics. MONTGOMERY, Ala.—At a fund-raising dinner in Dalles Saturday night, Gov. George

C. Wallace of Alabama was characteristically coy about running for President again in 1972 But here in Wallace's home base, veteran Wallace-watchers are merely amused by his relative reticence. He could no more fail to run, they say, than Alabama River could fail to flow past this historic old first capital of the Confederacy.

The Dallas dinner, at which Wallace raised $40,000 and complained to a cheering crowd of more than 1,000 that neither major party paid enough attention to the working man, was in itself evidence that the governor has not retired from national contention. There's another, similar dinner (850 a plate) planned for Nashville, Tenn., later this month and neither Texas - nor Tennessee is fertile ground for raising money for strictly local operations in Alabama. Additional evidence is to be found in "The Wallace Stand," the governor's newspaper, which plays up the two dinters as well as the George Wallace watches. (the hands end in boxing gloves) at $15.95 (Alabama residents add 6 percent. Which tells you something about taxes in Wallace country). With his customary mastery of the nuances demagoguery, Wallace changed the main headline on this publication overnight from one which had him pledging to pardon Lt. William Calley to a modest proclamation that the lieutenant is a "scapegoat." This transformation, Montgomery sources say with some amusement, followed publication of a Gallup Poll that found a majority of Americans the scapegoat theory. Even more compelling evidence of 1972 intentions was seen here in the governor's address at the opening of the regular legislative session last week. After showing little interest in politics—in Alabama or elsewhere-during an earlier special session this year, the old slam-bang candidate súddenly, resppeared.

It was, wrote Don Wasson in the Montgomery Advertiser, "the old magic" on display before crowded galleries and on statewide television. "The manner of delivery, the gestures, the excitement in his voice and the fervor of his address were indeed mindful of the 1968 campaign."

Promising, for instance, to talk "in a lot of places" "about the Supreme Court's recent decision in favor of busing school children to achieve desegregation, Wallace observed caustically that "Mr. Nixon said he was against busing. Well, every member he put on the Suprme Court voted for busing. He ought to have talked to them about it before he appointed them to the Supreme Court.

So it is taken for granted among those who know Wallace best that he is already running. although they believe his emphasis this time will be on the South and on building a maximum electoral-vote total below the Potomac. What his chances are remain to be seen. The busing decision undoubtedly gave him new ammunition and hurt President Nixon But on the other hand progressive new governors in Florida, Georgia, South Garaling and Arkansas, and Republican governors in Tennessee and Virginia, will certainly fight Wallace hard, either overtly or cov-

One of the main reasons they are confident he will run next year is their belief that his personal mania, not so much for office itself as for winning office. is his lifeblood. Short of a much greater triumph in 1972 than his moderately good showing in 1968, they ask, where does George Wallace go?

About 49 percent of Alabamlans voted against him for governor last year. And these appear to be a hard-core, permanent opposition; as 18-year-olds begin to vote and more blacks enter political life, an anti-Wallace majority. seems likely in the state where he once could do no wrong Even this year, in the special legislative session, his proposal for a $356-million bond issue for parks, highways and medical education was cavalierly slashed to $53 million for medical education only.

The Requirements in Pakistan

Whose Fault Was It?

Europe has no responsibility for the present monetary crisis, which is due to the export of American inflation and to speculation on uncontrollable Eurodollars. France has thus no reason to pay the price for American policy again, instead of the U.S. It has been demonstrated once again that. each time a choice has to be made between the dollar and Europe, certain members of the Community who claim to be more European than the others actually choose the dollar, regardless of whether Eurofarm is likely to suffer from this-which the Anglo-American press appears to welcome-or that economic and monetary union may be handicapped. This is a further reason for France to abide by the concept of a European Europe at a time when the negotiations with Britain enter a decisive phase. -From La Nation (Paris). * * *

Amid all the recent turmoil one point stood out. It was a dollar crisis, yet the country which should have been at the center of the storm regarded the situation as it regards the balance-of-payments deilcit which caused it-"with benign neglect." All through, the Americans have taken the line that there is nothing they can do. that it is up to other countries to adjust their parities against the dollar. There may be a lack of logic in this, since the revaluations and floats over the weekend are equivalent to a partial devaluation of the dollar.

But then the Americans are in a position in which internal political considerations do take precedence over fine reasoning. The mid-term congressional elections brought home to President Nixon that battling against inflation while unemployment was continuing to rise was not the recipe for success in 1972.

-From the Financial Times (London).

The whole question of the dollar's strength in the face of the European and Japanese currencies has been brought to a head by the de-facto devaluation it underwent in Europe this week. For Thailand, it raises the question of how wise it is for the kingdom to hold so much of her foreign exchange in this currency.

While one cannot criticize this policy (virtually every other country follows it to some degree), it does suggest a need for a wider base, and a bank balance that can be counted in marks and Swiss francs as well as.

In a statement, the CAB implied it would impose similar restrictions on Qantas.

By Robert S. Samuelson

It was the first time that the CAB has taken such strong action against a foreign airline and could foreshadow similar measures against countries limiting the number of low-cost U.S. charter flights.

The CAB accused Australia of violating the basic treaty establishing air service between the two countries. That treaty-like most others governing mutual airline rights establishes what cities each country's carriers may serve. However, the actual selection of airlines is left to each government and the decision on the frequency of flights (per day or per week) is left with the air-

The CAB warned yesterday that it may disallow some of Qantas's existing flights to the U.S. and turn down new flights planned by the carrier. Quntas now has 13 flights between Australia and San Francisco. with four passenger planes continuing on to New York and Loudon.

The action highlighted the delicate nature of international negotiations over airline rights, with each government trying to protect its own carriers' interests. In most cases, the government owns the airline and often seeks to shield it from excessive foreign competition by limiting the number of cities to which other countries' carriers can fly. Qantas is government-owned.

Industry sources said yesterday however, that restrictions against the number of scheduled flights by an airline are relatively rare. Much more pervasive are limitations on the number of nonscheduled charter flights, which usually offer passengers substantially lower fares than the scheduled flights.

The charter airlines now face quotas in West Germany, Japan, France and England. In addition,

Lavish Plans for Persian Anniversary

By Hebe Dorsey

DARIS, May 12 (IHT).—Iran will be a festive land next October, with grandiose, stateplanned celebrations for the 2,500th anniversary of the Persian Empire and the Bal des Petits Lits Blancs (an anniversary too, for this charitable organization, if only the 50th).

The Shah of Iran has planned things on a thousand-and-onenights, grandiose scale to entertain his guests, 50 kings and chiefs of state, for three days and three nights, starting Oct. 15. Short of sending a flying carpet for them, it is hard to see how he could do more.

To start with, he has ordered the installation of a camp recalling Emperor Cyrus's camp in the Persepolis desert, facing the famous ruins.

The whole thing will be direct homage to French taste, cuisine and savoir-faire. Jansen is masterminding the decoration of the tents, Maxim's will handle the catering and the Groupe de Paris (well-known for its galas) will help with the planning of the fetes. Lanvin Men is doing the embroidered uniforms (two pounds of gold thread each) for the ambassadors and dignitaries. Later on, those uniforms will be adopted by Iranian ambassadors abroad.

A Forest

landscape artist Jean Delogne is in charge of the gardens. He is installing flags, fountains and planting a whole forest of low pines. The flowers will be carefully tended in nurseries so they will bloom at just the right hour. The camp is being equipped with all the essentials-including an electric power unit, three wells, 300 telephones and a heliport. It will spread over a surface four times the size of the Place de la Concorde and will include a grand salon, a dining room, a club house (with a gambling room) and private quarters for the shah and Empress Farah (brown and beige for him, blue and stainless steel for her). Fifty tents for the guests, beige to blend with the color of the sand, are being set up on five-branch-star pattern, an old Iranian philosophical sym-

Jansen decorators are keeping 300 people busy on the project, using 37,000 meters of fabric (with plenty of red velvet and blue faile), Louis XV furniture and crystal chandeliers which are being trucked away to Iran this week. Even the bathrooms are being made in Paris, a tricky job that is keeping Jansen technicians flying back and forth to make sure the pipes fit.

Feeling it would be too bad to let all this grandeur go to waste, the Baronne Seillière has announced that the Petits Lits Blancs (of which she is president) will hold its ball there. With the help of Dr. Mehdi Bousheri, director of the Malson de l'Iran in Paris (and brotherin-law of the shah), plans are being made to fly 174 Parisians (at a cost of $650 each) to Iran for five days of imperial living. Two days in Persepolis will

Dollar Rate for Mark Slips But Trading Is Moderate

PARIS, May 12 (IRT),-Hesitant dealers in Frankfurt waited for a move from the West German central bank as the dollar dropped on the foreign currency market today.

The dollar declined in moderate trading to 3.5650 marks after opening at 3.5675, down from yesterday's 3.5700 close.

One dealer said speculators had not yet been able to find any loopholes in the government's decision to separate the official and free markets. This is designed to curb speculation by making all capital transactions pass through the free market, with its floating rate. · Decline at Nippon Kokan TOKYO. May 12 (AP-DJ). Nippon Kokan, a major steel producer and shipbuilder, today reported profits declined 33 percent in the half-year ended March 31-to 4.51 billion yen ($12.5 million) from 6.7 billion yen a year earlier. The firm attributed the lower profits to a decline in domestic steel prices and the higher costs of imported coking coal. Operating profits plummeted 54 percent in the period, while sales gained 4 percent to 294.14 billion yen from 282.54 billion year earlier. Sumitomo Metal Reports Sumitomo Metal Industries announced its profits and sales each rose 2 percent during the same half-year. The company is one of Japan's five major steel Droducers.

Net climbed to 4.71 billion yen from 4.61 billion a year earlier. while sales increased to 224.56 billion yan from 220,83 billion.

"It is the inevitable psychological reaction of a poor nation looking at a richer country," says a Tokyo economist. "The disparity between Japan and the others is growing fast and there is a mixed feeling of envy and jealousy." The crux of the problem, some suggest, is simply a difference in national personalities. Japanese businessmen are aggressive, and other Asians find this approach strange and troubling.

They appoint local sales representatives at the outset of a venture, then step in when the market is established and business is thriving, it is alleged. . . Even equitable relationships eventually become Japanese-controlled. A Japanese partner in a joint venture, for example, may insist on expansion. The local partner, unable to find new capital, allows the Japanese to supply the expansion money and take a majority share in the enterprise. Control of raw materials can produce the same result. "Certain materials were needed to be imported for a local-Japanese condiment venture," explains one Aslan, "But the Japanese set the price high and the factory suffered a loss. The local businessman paricked and sold out to the Japanese partner. Then the factory made a profit."

to gain control of a market, other Asian businessmen complain. An American electronics components manufacturer in Taiwan says "they like nothing better than to knock out American manufacturers. If they get rid of us, they are free to raise prices. And our customers are right on the verge of shifting." The charge is untrue, responds Takeshi Izuta, general manager of Mitsui & Co's Philippine office. But he admits that "the first desire of Japanese companies is growth, then profit."

Some of the antagonism has racial overtones, but critics say the Japanese are to blame for that. A banker in Kuala Lumpur says, "When the Japanese are in South Africa, they class themselves as whites. When in America, they class themselves as an advanced nation. And in Asia they call themselves fellow-Asians. Is it any wonder people don't trust them?" Japanese tourism is another cause for Asian complaints. They at first thought it would mean foreign exchange carnings. But to many Asians it seems Japanese businesses are benefitting the most.

Tourists fly on Japan Air Lines, on tours arranged by Japanese-owned, Bangkokbased agencies. They often stay at the Amarin, a Japanese-sweed hotel, and eat Japanese food served at a Japaneseowned restaurant. They shop at Daimaru department store, another Japanese firm, and even hire Japanese tour guides to show them around Bangkok. At night, the men mingle with imported Japanese hostesses at the Japanese-owned Sani Chateau nightclub.

FINANCIAL NEWS AND NOTES

German Prices Continue Rise

The West German wholesale price index, excluding value-added tax, rose 0.4 percent to 110.1 in April from March this year and was 5.2 percent higher than in April 1970, the Federal Statistics Office reports (1962 equals 100). Commenting on rising prices, the State Secretary in the Economics Ministry. Philip Rosenthal, noted the country must expect increases to continue at an annual rate of about 5 percent for the time being. He warned against optimism that price rises could be cut back quickly as a result of the government's weekend stabilization measures, including floating the mark and cutting public spending and borrowing.

U.S. Steel Firms Boost Prices

U.S. Steel Corp. and Jones & Laughlin Steel Corp will increase prices for stainless bars, billets. wire, including cold heading wire, rods, sheet and strip by 6.5 percent effective May 17. The move follows similar increases by other U.S. man:ifacturers.

Cunard Sues Glasgow Yard

Upper Clyde Shipbuilders (UCS) is "concerned but not unduly worried" about a Cunard suit claiming £2 million ($4.8 million) in compensation for the three months late delivery of the Queen Elizabeth 2 luxury liner. UCS Chairman Anthony Hepper says company lawyers have studied the suit and "have advised us that Cunard has no claim," He warned however that if the compensation had to be paid the Glasgow shipyard would go bankrupt, throwing 7,000 men out of work. Mr. Hepper added that the claim is for loss of profit but that there had been "no penalty clause" in the contract. The 65,000-ton vessel. built at a cost of £30 million, made its maiden voyage across the Atlantic in May 1969, more than three months behind schedule. The delay was caused by a series of engine faults. Japanese Machines Set Record

Japan's exports of business machines and equipment in 1970 exceeded imports for the first time, totaling 118.58 billion yen ($327 million) compared with imports worth 116.07 billion yen, the Nippon Office Management Association reports. The association valued total Japanese production of business machines and equipment in 1970 at 664.77 billion yen ($1.846 billion). Desk-top calculators accounted for 55.4 percent of the production in 1970, edging over the 50 percent mark for the first time, and 60 percent of that output went for export. Production of electronic calculators has increased 7.100 percent in the past five years, the group says. It expects sales of most business machines and equipment to remain heavy this year except for desk-top calculator. which it said may decline.

Cost of Living Up in Italy

Italy's wage-related cost-of-living index rose two points for the three months ended April 30. giving the country's workers automatic pay increases effective from May 1. The increases range from 871 lire ($1.39) to 1.898 lire ($3.04) per month. The index now stands at 170, the government statistics office reports, up seven points from May 1, 1970 (May-July 1956 equals

GE Urges Lockheed to Buy U.S. Engine

By Philip Greer NEW YORK, May 12 (WP).-The government should guarantee loans to Lockheed Aircraft only if the firm uses American instead of British engines in its L-101; TriStar airbus, the chief executive of General Electric said yesterday. GE itself is a leading maker of iet engines.

Making public the main elements of letters to President Nixon and Treasury Secretary John B. Connally jr., GE chairman Fred J. Borch thus brought into the open a split within the aerospace industry on the guarantee for Lockheed.

One of the leading Senate opconents of the Lockheed loan. Sen. William Proxmire. D., Wis., immediately indicated that he intends to use GE's statement against the administration proposal. "This is a major breakthrough," he said.

Lockheed Reaction [In London, where he had just signed a contract with Rolls-Royce, Lockheed chairman Daniel

J. Haughton stressed that his firm "has not asked the United States for a subsidy. All that we require is a guarantee for additional loans from our 24 bankers and this will be the last money we borrow and the first money that we pay back." [Commenting on the GE demand, he said that "it doesn't change my thinking. Things like this have to be expected when competition is so fierce."]

Conversion of the TriStar to accept GE's engines would cost about $52 million, Mr. Borch said. But the increased cost of the RB-211 "makes the conversion to GE engines a virtual standoff," he said.

Mr. Borch said that requiring GE engines in the TriStar would create "many thousands of jobs in the hard-hit aerospace industiv." He estimated the increased manpower needed by both GE and Rohr Aircraft, which makes the engine coverings, would be 10,000 to 12,000 jobs.

AFL-CIO Backs Guarantee ATLANTA May 12-The AFL-CIO will throw its considerable legislative muscle behind the administration effort to get a loan guarantee for Lockheed, union president George Meany said yesterday. Following a meeting of the federation's executive council here. Mr. Meany said the AFL-CIO would back the plan because "it means thousands and thousands of jobs affecting thousands and thousands of our members who are employed by Lockheed."

The AFL-CIO followed much the same line of reasoning in its strong but unsuccessful efforts to win congressional support for continuing federal funds to develop the supersonic transport earlier this spring.

The union says 25,000 workers are directly associated with the

Senator Seeks Resignation Of Entire Lockheed Board

WASHINGTON, May 12 (Reuters).—Sen. Alan Cranston, D. Calif., proposed today a complete change in the board of directors and top executives of Lockheed Aircraft as a condition for a $250 million federal loan guarantee for the company.

Sen. Cranston told a press conference he would offer this condition as an amendment to legislation establishing the loan guarantee, expected to be introduced tomorrow. Citing several examples of what he considered serious mismanagement by Lockheed executives, Sen, Cranston said his amendment would require all 14 members of the board of directors to resign allowing the stockholders to elect a new board. He said no member of the present board and no present employee of the company would be elected to the new board under his amendment.

Bugner's Fight Makes Him An Unwanted Heavyweight

WEMBLEY, England, May 12 (UPI).—Heavyweight champion Joe Frazier can rest easy—there's no danger to him from this side of the Atlantic.

That goes for Muhammad All George Foreman and all, for current European king Joe Bugner who made his first defense of the Continental crown last night would not be worth hiring as a sparring partner.

So said Fritz Wiese, manager West German Jurgen Blin after his fighter lost a split decision to the 21-year-old Hungarian-born fighter at the Emplre Pool arena in a mauling, acrambling 15-rounder.

"Bugner is not a good champion—of his own country or the Continent." Wiese said disgustedly. He added: "In my opinion. he would not even offer Cassius Clay or Joe Frazier good sparring practice."

Most English journalists agreed with Wiese. One wrote:

any talk of a battle with Cassius Clay or George Foreman must be regarded as a suicide pact." while another wrote that if there was any possibility of Bugner meeting Ali or Foreman, "I would have felt constrained to go to a that he was retiring. royal society for the prevention of cruelty to boxers to try to prevent what would have palpably been one of the worst mismatches since they put a dray horse against a Derby winner."

He added: "Blin's punches were lacking all damaging power but he was landing some punches while Bugner stood there like a huge blond clockwork doll which someone had forgotten to wind

Bugner's manager, Andy Smith blamed infected tonsils for the lackluster performance. He said the infection interrupted training and Joe probably will have to have the tousils removed before his next fight. Whatever the reason, the outcome of last night's fight undoubtedly is that big Joe will greatly increased their lead in the qualifying stage of the Bermuda Bowl bridge contest last winning 20-0 in matches against Brazil and China. The team, which had led earlier in the event, had a harder time, losing 8-13 to the North America II team, and beating Brazil 12-8.

Meanwhile, the Australians scored a 10th-round victory over North America II by 70 international match points, worth 70-2 in victory points. But earlier, in the 9th round, they had lost 6-14 against Nationalist China.

-There is no play this afternoon. A key match in the evening, which begins the third cycle of qualifying play, will be between France and Australia. If the Australians can beat the European champions decisively, they will retain some slight chance of overtaking them and reaching the final which begins Saturday.

The standings after 10 rounds were: the Dallas Aces, 157; France, 131; Australia, 102; Nationalist China, 72; Brazil, 63; North America II, 62. Five rounds remain to be played in the qualifying stage.

In the most sensational deal of the ninth round, the North America II team gained international match points, sufficient to turn defeat into victory against France. South had no great difficulty in making five clubs doubled with an overtrick after the opening lead of the spade ace. He ruffed in dummy, cashed the heart ace and entered his hand with a heart ruff to lead the spade queen. He ruffed out West's spade king and played trumps. East's club ace was the only trick for the defense.

My Years in Public Life, 1941-1969

By Chester Bowles. Illustrated. Harper & Row. 657 pp. Reviewed by Christopher Lehmann-Haupt

Four personal prejudices awoke in me when I tried to pick up Chester Bowles's "Promises to Keep: My Years in Public Life, 1941-1969," and made the book seem as heavy as a tombstone. First, memoirs by retired public figures (statesmen, chairmen of boards, center-fielders) tend to be ego-fat dripping in dying fires. Second, autobiographies that cover only the public aspects of their authors' lives are all too often as sparklingly animated as Andy Warhol's film of the Empire State Building. Third, I'm increasingly persuaded that books over 400 pages long are out of shape and in need of exercise. And finally, titles taken from poems by Robert Frost ought to be banned forthwith. But Chester Bowles was a figure one had occasion to admire off and on over the years, even if his-brand of liberalism seems out of date today. So I hefted the book. A preliminary browse revealed that the former dean of ambassadors had covered his life from the time he gave up an annual income of $250,000 at his advertising firm, Benton & Bowles, Inc., in order "to contribute to the war effort" as. Connecticut state tire ration administrator. to the point of his resignation as ambassador to India. One noted that he had devoted as much space (approximately 160 pages) to his years with the Office of Price Administration as he had to his years in the Kennedy administration as under secretary of state and the President's special representative and adviser on Asian, African and Latin American affairs. Were the two periods of equal interest and significance? one wondered. If Mr. Bowles thought so, what was his point? Simply to write "My Years With Chester Bowles"? So I turned to his epilogue to see if he had extracted a point.

Sure enough: there, in his concluding chapter, were round, optimistic after-dinner phrases about our current "political watershed," about the need for "a greatly strengthened UN, armed with effective, adequately financed peace-keeping machinery," etc., and about how "this is no time to throw up our hands in despair." And pinned onto them was the lame conclusion that "I am hopeful that this account of my years in public life may provide some encouragement to those who are beginning their careers, and who are concerned about the task of social innovation and political reform." So it seemed that an ego of large proportions operating here.

But a random sampling of "Promises to Keep" revealed an ebullient spirit marching through these pages; an engaging sense of narrative; an intriguing (almost incredible) magnanimity toward certain Connecticut politicians (like former business partner and former Sen. William

At even strength, the Canadiens got their third score when Lapointe's long shot ripped past Tony Esposito, the Hawk goaltender.

2d Foley Miscue In the second period, Foley, who seldom had been used by coach Billy Reay on the power play, made another mistake. Cournoyer swooped out of the penalty box at midice, intercepted Foley's pass and, with Esposito at his mercy, drilled in a goal for

After a Hawk tally by Dennis Hull the Mahovlich brothers put pressure on Esposito, and Courmover finished the ecoring with his ninth goal of the playoffs.

Meanwhile, a 22-year-old helmeted right wing, Rejean Houle, shadowed Bobby Hull wherever the Hawk superstar akated in the Forum, where the thermometer showed 78 degrees.

- Finally, the 17,678 spectators. with the verdict assured, enjoyed the come de grace of a three-ring quarrel. Late in the socreless third period, three wrestling bouts erupted. The match-ups were Lapointe-Keith Magnuson, Marc Tardif-Paul Shmyr and Phil Roberto-Danny O'Shea.

Less than a minute after those bouts were ended. Frank Mahovlich battled Cliff Korab to complete the 86 minutes in penalties.

Soviet Five Defeats U.S. All-Star Team

CANANDAIGUA N.Y. May 12 (AP).—The Soviet national basketball team survived a late rally by a team of United States college and amateur players last night to gain an 83-82 victory in the opening game of an American Modestas Paulauskis, a 6-foot-5 guard, scored 22 points and 7-2 center Sergei Kovalenko added 18 to lead the Soviet team. Darnell Hillman, who has signed with the Indiana Pacers of the American Baskethall Association, led the U.S. team with 19 points. Jeff Pitch added 17 in the game. which was played under Amateur Athletic Union rules.

Even Jim Ryun didn't know why he quit that day in Miami nearly two years ago. But he knows why he came back. "Anne was my source of motivation," said the world's fastest miler. "I had lost my enthusiasm but she hadn't. I don't think I'd ever step off a track and out "Quitting was a way to get out of an unsolvable situation," said the former University of Kansas star of the move that became an international incident in the track world.

"I couldn't say no." said the 6-foot-8-inch runner. "I was a member of the university team and I knew it was a good team and I didn't want to get them down. I needed a rest but I was committed to run."

Ryun has said he was mentally and physically exhausted after training to peak for the 1968 Olympics in Mexico the previous summer. He'd had mononnoleosis and a pulled hamstring. Because he felt the pressures of obligation to his team, he wouldn't let up. But he wouldn't say whether it was his own conscience or his coach that was unralenting.

So instead of running, he quit. Instead of going from Mismi to a meet in Europe, the Ryuns returned to school, where Jim resumed his studies and a somewhat normal life-except for the

Pitcher Dunning Is Hit for Indians

Dunning need not take his pitching demise last night too

By George DeGregorio NEW YORK, May 12 (NYT). -Steve Dunning, the Cleveland Indians' $60,000 bonus baby who was the No. 1 draft choice last June in the free-agent sweepstakes, was supposed to do his pitching in the minor leagues this year.

But the Indians, who can use all the help they can get these days, had a change of heart and kept Dunning, a fastball thrower, to help support a sagging mound

Last night Dunning got the starting assignment and in the second inning he helped stake himself to a 5-0 lead with a grand-slam homer, the first by an Indian pitcher since John O'Donoghue clouted one against Detroit on June 1, 1967. The Indians and Dunning blew the lead but hung on to rally and beat the Oakland A's, 7-5. But reliever Phil Hennigan got the Hennigan, brought up Saturday from Wichita, replaced Dunning in the fifth with none out and four runs across. He allowed only two hits the rest of the way as the Indians notched their tenth victory in 29 games and snapped a three-game A's winning streak the announcement last week when the U.S. Navy promoted its first black officer to rear admiral that little attention was paid to another breakthrough in rigid naval tradition. With no little pride the Navy announced that it had appointed its first white Anglo-Saxon Protestant waiter to serve in a U.S. Navy officers' mess.

The lucky seaman was John Paul Jones VII. of Akron, Ohio, Up until Secman Jones's appointment as mess boy, only Filipino and black sailors were permitted to serve naval officers. But after a secret

tions report, it was decided that if the Navy was going to have black admirals, it would have to have white mess boys to even things out. Although the U.S. Army, Air Force and Marines all use WASP mess attendants, the Navy. according to the report, had been dragging its feet. The Navy kept ficers' tables. But the report found that mess boys in the Navy were not being selected according to qualifications but according to

"There are many white sailors who are as good at serving officers as blacks and Filipinos." the report stated. "They have just not been given the opportunity to prove it. It is our opinion that if the U.S. Navy hopes to recruit more members of the Anglo-Saxon race, it had better open up its kitchens and pantries to Caucasian servicemen."

Stung by the report, the Navy denied that John Paul Jones VII

WASHINGTON.—There was so had been appointed to serve in much publicity attached to an officers mess because he was

> "Jones." a Navy spokesman said. "was selected because he was the most qualified waiter we could find."

The public information officer was questioned about the fact that Jones's appointment came only one week after the Defense Department report was leaked to

"I'll admit." he sald, "it sounds like a coincidence, but the U.S. Navy, and you are going to have to take my word for this, has been looking for qualified WASP mess boys for the last 192 years. "I would like to add, gentlemen, that John Paul Jones VII will not be the last WASP mess boy to make it in the Navy. It is our policy to see that our officers' galleys are staffed by the best men available, regardless of race, creed or color."

The public information officer than introduced Seaman Jones to the press. Jones read a statement: "I am very proud to be the first one of my race to be selected by the U.S. Navy to serve in an officers' mess. For many years WASP seamen were saying it couldn't find any quali- only allowed to work in gunnery. fied WASP seamen to wait on of- engines, aviation, navigation and radar. We were not permitted to work in the pantry. I believe this policy, which has now been changed, will benefit not only my brother WASPs, but the U.S.

"Perhaps at first, but I'm going to prove that WASPs can do anything Filipinos can. feel I represent every white Anglo-Saxon Protestant whose dream it has been for 192 years to serve in Navy officers' messes: on land as well as on sea. This is a golden opportunity, and I plan to make the most of it."

After the press conference Seaman John Paul Jones VII was taken to the White House, where President Nixon presented him with a white mess jacket and an aluminum tray. Witnessing the scene was Jones's father, a retired U.S. Navy admiral, who at the end of the ceremony broke into

Rome Runs Short of Water

"ROME. May 9 (UPI).-The city of the Caesars was a dirty, thirsty, smelly tourn today. . .. (From the IHT, May 10.)

Aqueducts of the Caesars

LAS, the grandour that was Rome! In A the days of the Caesars it was sometimes dirty and often smelly, but thirsty. never. From the time when Rome built its first aqueduct (312 BC), the city never lacked water. Rome had about 20 aqueducts under Trajan and up to the last war, seven were still functioning, supplying Rome with more water per capita than any other city in the world. This is the explanation of the famous fountains of Rome, which inspired Resphigi to dedicate a symphonic poem to them. I do not know of any city which has more, and some of them pour out floods of water unparalleled anywhere else.

The famous Trevi fountain, into which you toss a coin to insure another visit to Rome. guslies incredible quantities. There are three fountains in the Piazza Navona, and four at one intersection in the street consequently named the Via delle Quattro Fontane. In ancient Roman days, the Colosseum could be flooded for naval battles; and there were besides two amphitheaters built expressly for such spectacles.

No city has ever had such a plenitude of water. The comparatively meager number of fountains in Paris operate chiefly in the tourist season and on holidays. At Versailles, where Louis XIV established an elaborate system of water supply for his fountains, they can only be played on Sundays—and not usually all at the same time.

But Rome's fountains run all the time.

When Queen Christing of Sweden visited the Vatican in the 17th century and viewed the two fountains of the Piazza San Pietro spouting away, she assumed that they had been turned on for her benefit, and gave her gracious permission that they be shut off after she had looked at them. She was astounded to be told that they never stopped. If Rome today is short of drinking water, but long on fountain water, it may be partly because the municipal authorities are sensitive to the charm of their fountains, and are willing to risk shortage of drinking water in order to be sure of having enough fountain water. After all, you can always drink wine. The Emperor Augustus, it is true, took the opposite view. When the plebians clamored for the addition of wine to the free rations of wheat, oil and bacon already being distributed to the "needy"—a term so liberally interpreted that at times half of the city's population was drawing food from the state —he replied unfeelingly that Rome had a plentiful supply of excellent drinking water.

A few emperors later the beneficiaries of the dole were drawing wine too. Modern Rome has not offered free wine to replace diverted water, but in 1961 there were many Romans who felt that the city had deprived them of one of their most appreciated sources of water in order to feed the fountains.

That was the year when Rome lost its cherished "virgin water." It came from a swiftly flowing spring in the Alban hills, whose purity was so prized that the population kept its location a secret, for fear that the Romans, if they discovered it, would pipe ir forthwith to Rome—an assumption justified by what happened. A Roman legionnaire seduced a Sabine girl, who revealed to him the whereabouts of the springhence the name "virgin water." The censor Marcus Vispanius Agrippa promptly built an aqueduct to take it to Rome; and Romans drank it, and considered it their best water, from 21 BC until 1961, with interruptions. The aqueduct was damaged during the Barbarian invasions of Rome in the fifth century AD, but was repaired each time it was cut. In 1485, Pope Nicholas V gave it a thorough restoration, and in 1570. Pope Pius V treated it to another.

It was a blow to Rome when the municipal health department declared it non potabile in 1961, and diverted its water from the drinking network to feed the Trevi fountain the Four Rivers fountain in the Piazza Navona, and the Little Boat fountain at the foot of the Spanish Steps. The authorities maintained that even if it were cleaned the ancient aqueduct could never deliver water pure enough for drinking. The protesters retorted that Vatican City was still drinking water delivered by an aqueduct built under Trajan (AD 53-117). But the protesters were few in number, for after all "virgin water" could only be delivered to the lowest part of central Rome, along the Tiber. The altitude there is 66 feet above sea level: the aititude of the spring is 72. The ancient Romans had achieved the feat of constructing an aqueduct through which water flowed freely and regularly with a drop of only six feet in 12 miles!

Most of the other ancient Roman-aducducts delivered their water at a higher level -- the above-ground ones, that is, for although these are the ones always thought of by those who know the Roman countryside. with its high broken arches striding across the green fields, the first two aqueducts of Rome, the Appia (312 BC) and the Anio Vetus 272 BC:, ran underground.

Trajan's Column in Rome.

Some of the above-ground aqueducts reached Rome at a height sufficient for them to pour fresh water into the fish tanks located on the top floor of the five-story market of Trajan for sea fish tsalt water was brought in cistern carts from Ostia). How high that was you can see for yourself when you look at Trajan's column, rich'y sculptured with reliefs picturing the Dacian War, all that remains of his forum. The column was not only a monument to Trajan, it was a monument to the engineering skill of the Greek architect Apollodorus of Damascus, who built the forum and the market—the latter, empty and gutted, still stands today. The halo on the head of St. Peter. who has replaced Trajan on top of the column, marks the exact level of the ground excavated from the Quirinal Hill to make room for the forum—and for the market, a sort of afterthought, for it was constructed as a buttress to prevent what remained of the hill from sliding into the forum. Afterthought or not, it was the greatest supermarket of olden times, unrivaled anywhere thereafter until the Halles of Paris were built in 1854.

When it came to water supply. Trajan had a simpler problem than the modern Roman administration. Rome had, in his time, a population of something like 1.200.000, a tremendous figure for antiquity. Million-population cities hardly existed. though Alexandria and Carthage, in their respective heydays, probably reached or passed this mark; but both were on the sea, which simplified their supply problems. Nevertheless. Rome, with all its ancient aqueducts running, had no difficulty giving enough water to more than a million people, nor for that matter did pre-war Rome, not as populous is Imperial Rome at its peak, though it had lost two-thirds of the aqueducts. But since the war, the population served by the Rome water supply system has tripled. How long can the fountains play?

Like, we can't read everything, right? and it just so happens that most of this week we've been all wrapped up in "The House at Poch Corner." so it's nice to have friends in London-namely Al Friendly and Arky Gonzalez... to bring us up to date with the Financial Times, which reports: "A friend back from the U.S. swears that he saw there a newspaper story about a professor giving a talk on French philosophy to the inmates of a women's prison, and that on the story was the headline: 'Putting Descartes Before the Whores."

Terminal Papers: Landing o the desk on Robert L. McG. our favorite schoolteacher E. Rome was the following dissertation on the event that led to the start of World War I: "It was the assassination of the Archduck by a pheasant." Meanwhile, "In a final exam on Mac-Beth." writes Edmund Boyd, of Sevilla, Spain. "an English major I know wrote: 'Lady Mac-Beth was an effective instrument in bringing about her husband's fall because she was bent on one
